Directions

1. Manufacturers use catchy slogans and fun images to persuade us to buy their products. Short taglines that capture our interest are a sometimes called a “call to action”.
2. What slogan might you use to spread the command, “You shall not covet”? One way to say this might be, “Curb coveting”.
3. Sometimes an advertiser will take the opposite approach and tell people what they should do instead of what they should not do. What does the Lord want you to do instead of coveting? For example, if you flip from coveting to thankfulness you might say, “Be Thankful”.
4. Choose a template on the following pages to design a T-shirt that expresses a call to action about coveting. Decide between using a “you shall not” slogan or a positive action. Use compelling language that encourages others to want to obey the command not to covet.
5. Decorate your T-shirt.
