

Reflect on and write about times when you have been touched by interaction between an adult and a child. These may be incidents from your own childhood, your experiences as a parent, or what you've observed in another family. Reflect on what children can bring to adults as well as the potential for adults to nurture children. How can these interactions help us focus on what is truly important in life?