

Teen Prayers

on Divine Providence, Freedom, and Permissions

O Lord, You have shown that everyone's god is that which he loves above all things. Help me shun the evils of self-love and the world that these may not have dominion over my life and that I may worship You alone! Amen. (Adapted from Apocalypse Explained 935).

Lord, we live in times when it is often difficult for us to have faith. When we look at the world we live in, with its selfishness, its poverty, and its corruption, we find ourselves asking how a loving God can allow these things to happen. It is in times like these that we need our faith the most, and when it is hardest. Help us, Lord, to have faith that You are present in this world, in the life of all people, in all the goodness, honesty, love and charity that does exist. Help us to have faith that in Your Providence You are constantly leading each person toward heaven, and, in doing so are working through them to ameliorate the things of this world. We pray, Lord, that our faith in Your loving presence may grow from day to day. May we find increasing evidence of Your hand wherever we look, for You, O Lord, are our Creator and Savior, Your love and wisdom never cease, and Your care is over the whole of Your creation. Amen. (Rev. Andrew Dibb)

Lord, we know that when we are in the mighty stream of Providence, You are carrying us along continually toward what is happy, no matter what the appearance is. Only those who trust in You and give You the credit for all the good things of their lives, are in this stream. O Lord, help me to grow in my trust. Amen. (See Arcana Coelestia 8478:4)

O Lord, I lift up my soul to You. You are my God, and I trust in You. Do not let my enemies have power over me. Amen. (see Psalm 21:1-2, 20)
