

The Parable of the Sower and Your Life

Sometimes comparing one thing to another can help us to learn and understand. Here is a way to look at some of the parts of the parable of the sower and compare them to things in your own life to help you understand what the Lord is telling us.

First read Matthew 13:3-9,18-23 or Mark 4:3-9,13-20. Then take a subject from your own life and think of how you can avoid being like unproductive ground and instead be like the good ground and bear fruits. The sample on comparing parts of the Sower Parable to homework is adapted from an essay by an 8th grade student.

The Sower Parable	Homework
The Wayside	Doing the work with little or no care, or not doing it at all
Stony Ground	Doing a careful job only because you want good grades so everyone will think you are smart
Thorny Ground	Cheating on the homework, copying from another student or out of a book
Good Ground	Doing the work for the sake of learning the Lord's truths and the facts that come from them
The Fruits	Better grades, knowledge, understanding, skills, self-discipline

Now, using the chart below, think of your own comparisons. Some topic suggestions are sports, a party or outing, a family vacation, chores, doing something for someone else.
